Dear Dag:

While at the Naval War College last week I was given a glimpse of a paper entitled Militant Liberty. It was, I believe, undated and originated in the JSPD of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, classification Secret. The document itself was an informal sort of project proposal combined with a general think piece on the development and training of indigenous civilians for Psychological and Political Warfare work in Southeast Asia.

I would very much appreciate it if you could (1) get a copy to send up here for retention if possible, or failing that on loan, (2) find out as much as you conveniently can on the origins of the document, its authors and its present status. Number two above is, I realize, quite an assignment; and if this sort of research work is out of your province let me know and I will try more conventional channels.

Sincerely,
